

Marjorie Hall

Oh it was late. I was late leaving a friend's home after a good meal, and was walking quickly through town.

A man (at least I thought it was) ran out from a shop and came past me in rather a hurry. He looked strange so I turned and could see that he HAD A TAIL! A man with a tail! I mean, I ask you. It was terribly odd.

Perhaps I was just taken by the absurdity of it, but I could swear it also had HORNS. Maybe they were just POINTY EARS, but even that is odd, don't you think?

His LEGS WERE LONG and his FEET WERE HUGE. Oh heavens, they were huge! I'm not sure he could have been wearing shoes. Not with feet that big. Like a duck's feet.

It really wasn't a man, unless he were in costume. How could it have been? HAIR COVERED ITS ENTIRE BODY. LONG HAIR. Like a galloping fuzzball of furry hair. I really couldn't make out any other features. I suppose if I were to draw it I'd just draw lots of fluffy, fuzzy hair with pointy ears and huge feet!

It vanished rather quickly.

You do believe me don't you? I don't think I've gone crazy. Maybe I have. Do I look crazy?
